

Resources for activities in the doctoral student's doctoral education and dissertation work

At the start of the employment as PhD student, every student gets a “back-pack” of 40 000 SEK. This is to be used for purposes that are relevant to the doctoral student's doctoral education and dissertation work. This may be, but does not exclude other possible relevant costs, purchase of data, software, literature, fieldwork and costs for doctoral courses and scientific conferences. The doctoral student must, in consultation with the supervisor, decide on how the funds are used most productively during the 4 years of employment. It is the responsibility of the doctoral student and the supervisor that the funds are used in a responsible, cost-effective and productive manner and that the costs do not exceed the amount. If there are doubts about how the money can be used, the head of department must be consulted and approve the use. The department's financial officer shall be informed of the posting of the costs.
