Spring semester 2021: teaching both on campus and online

Most of our courses and programmes at the Department of Sociology will be conducted using digital tools (online) during the spring semester of 2021, and some teaching will be conducted on campus in our premises in Lund.

When teaching is provided on campus it will be necessary to still follow the Swedish Public Health Authority's regulations. A distance of at least 1.5 meters should be maintained between each person in a room at all times. No gatherings are to be of more than 50 people.

Lectures with more than 50 people will be given online. Teaching with practical, laboratory or aesthetic elements as well as excursions, seminars and lessons in smaller groups may take place, but will be adapted. Teaching will take place between 8am and 6pm.

Please note: due to the situation regarding covid-19, certain changes in schedule and course format may be made at short notice. Thank you for your understanding!
