Teaching during spring semester 2021

The Lund University vice chancellor has decided that as of 18 January, all activities that are not necessary to carry out with a physical presence on the University's premises are to be carried out digitally until further notice.

We are doing our very best to make sure you will receive an education of the highest possible quality, while we adapt the teaching format and our premises to minimise the spread of infection.

Due to the stricter restrictions, all faculty study spaces, computer rooms and other spaces intended for students (such as group rooms, lunch rooms and coffee rooms) are closed until at least 31 March. The Social Sciences Faculty Library does however offer a limited number of study spaces and computer spaces for students in need of these.

Updates will be made in your learning platform Canvas or in your schedule in Timeedit.

Note that the exact time is stated in the schedule. That means, lectures and seminars will begin at the exact time specified in the schedule (i.e. the so-called academic quarter will not be applied).

The Social Sciences Faculty Library

The Social Sciences Faculty Library offers a limited number of study spaces and computer spaces for students in need of these. See more info on the website of the Social Sciences Faculty Library in Lund.
